START HERE · THE EDITION, THE CARDS, THE GAMES

It is a card and game studio. It makes trading cards, and it makes the games those cards are played in. $3030 is the token the cards are bought with and the studio is funded by — it is not the product. The cards are the product. Everything below exists to serve that one sentence.

1 · THE EDITION — $3030

- ▶ One ERC-20, issued once as a SuperRare Liquid Edition. Cap 3,300,000. There is no second mint.
- ▶ You buy it with RARE on a bonding curve: the price rises as the curve fills, so early is cheaper and that is the whole mechanism.
- ▶ Burns are permanent. Supply only ever falls.
- ▶ Ticker $3030. The studio is ripmaster3030studios; the token it issues is ripmaster3030. A company and its product may differ.

3 · THE LOOP

buy $3030 → rip a pack → cards → hold (your tier rises) → play → earn a title →
a hero 1/1

- ▶ A pack is 350 $3030 (~$7 at the opening price) and rises with each tier.
- ▶ Four tiers, not seasons: 1,600 → 1,100 → 600 → 260 packs. A tier opens when the one before it sells out — not on a date. A season would be a promise about time; a tier is a promise about supply.
- ▶ Of every pack, half burns and half funds the studio — one contract, so it cannot half-happen.
- ▶ The eleven titles cannot be bought. Nothing keys on holding or burning more; a balance can be borrowed for a block, a feat cannot.

WHERE TO START

Rip one pack. It is the cheapest complete version of the whole thing: you spend $3030, half of it burns, and you hold cards whose art already knows what you hold. Everything else — the auctions, the titles, the games — is that same loop with more of it.

2 · EVERY CARD IS A LENS

- ▶ 100 cards, all rendered by one contract, each keyed by its id. A card is not a picture in a folder — it is a render the chain performs on request.
- ▶ 33 hero 1/1s: 11 auctioned · 11 pulled from packs · 11 earned by named feats in the games.
- ▶ 67 field lenses render whether or not anyone has minted them.
- ▶ Lovebeing — one per wallet, non-transferable, non-burnable.
- ▶ Holding changes the art. The lens reads your balance: 350 / 3,500 / 35,000 / 350,000 = Ash · Spark · Ember · Flame · Inferno — one pack, ten, a hundred, a thousand. The art acknowledges you. It does not pay you.

4 · THE ARCADE — FOUR GAMES

- ▶ THE CITY — 3.84 km of city you can land on. Be a bird, which cannot be hurt, targeted or armed, or a jet, which can. A photograph you take becomes a card.
- ▶ RIP ROCKETER — on-rails shooter; a flat 25-token launch fee goes to the studio.
- ▶ CLOUD RACER — anti-grav circuits, podium splits the pot.
- ▶ THE ARENA — 1v1 card wagers settled in a face-off.
- ▶ Games wager $3030 and cards. A small rake splits the same way a pack does. Cards change hands; they are never burned.

BEFORE YOU BUY — THE PART MOST PROJECTS LEAVE OUT

- The burn is real and it is not a 3× scarcity engine. A full four-tier sellout destroys 1,014,375 tokens — 30.7% of the mint, a 1.44× contraction, leaving ~2,285,625 alive.
- The same split hands the studio the same number of tokens — 44.4% of the surviving float. These two figures are one piece of arithmetic and should never be quoted apart. Concentration, not the burn, is the headline risk here.
- The opening price has not been measured. The $7 pack rests entirely on an assumed 1 RARE/token. The only live curve this project has ever run sat at 16.78 RARE. Until the real curve is previewed, treat the pack price as an estimate.
- There is no external security audit. A public testnet dress rehearsal and internal review are the substitute, and that is a deliberate trade, not an oversight.
- NFA. An experimental art project. It can go to zero, and the cards are meant to be worth having anyway.
